Inline Inspections

For an international furniture company, part of their activity involves purchasing products in China. Selling to large international retailers, their biggest challenge next to ensuring high quality standards is to ensure that the goods are finished on time in order to avoid penalties from the retailers.

- Klako's experienced team have been working closely with the clients' product experts in Europe, creating an extension of the company and to monitor production in order to avoid any delays.
- Through the Initial Production Check, a visual inspection of materials, components and products available is monitored at the early stages of production. This can significantly reduce the risk posed by sub-standard or insufficient raw materials.
- As soon as approximately 30% of the production is complete Klako's engineers can perform a During Production Check to reduce the risk of substandard quality, and to ensure that all aspects of contractual obligations are met. The earlier quality shortcomings are identified, the easier it will be to initiate appropriate corrective measures.

By using Klako Group to control the productions, it allows them to prevent eventual problems, and to make necessary changes on time. This is making the business with China safer.
